

Release and Riser definitions http://www.upsb.info/wiki/index.php/Release_and_Riser_definitions

(The wiki article wasn't archived)

We have the Spanish translation by Freeman

<http://www.penspinning.es/viewtopic.php?f=57&t=458>

Freeman

Asunto: Diferencia entre Release y Riser

Publicado: 21 Jun 2008, 5:35 pm

Registrado: 20 May 2008, 5:26 pm

Mensajes: 3977

Hay muchos trucos que se pueden realizar con un Release y/o un Riser. Estos modificadores indican que el boli gira en el aire, convirtiéndose en trucos aéreos. Hay diferencias importantes entre los dos y es conveniente conocerlas.

Release

Los Release siguen este esquema:

Impulso > Giro en el aire > Coger el boli

En un Release impulsamos el boli con los dedos de modo que sale disparado girando en el aire, y seguidamente lo cogemos con la mano o con los dedos.

Ejemplos:

Thumbaround Release, Indexaround Release, Infinity Release

Riser

Los Riser siguen este esquema:

Impulso > Giro sobre la mano > Impulso Fingerless > Giro en el aire > Coger el boli

En un Riser, primero impulsamos el boli haciendo un truco, el boli gira sobre una parte de la mano y con una sacudida de ésta lo lanzamos al aire, donde gira, y para finalizar lo cogemos.

Ejemplos:

Thumbaround Riser, Shadow Riser, Bakriser, Palmspin Riser

Fuente: UPSB Wiki

Bienvenidos a la luz. RIP Bonkura

UPSB v3

Research Department Feedback / Release and Riser definitions article released

<https://upsb-v3.spin-archive.org/topic/7521>

1. sketching

Date: Sun, Jun 15 2008 20:00:01

The Research Department has just released a small article on the wiki. You can view the article here: Release and Riser definitions. The article suggests criteria to help differentiate the two types of aerials when naming new tricks.

Please give any comments/questions on the article in this thread.

2. Aiyah

Date: Wed, Jul 16 2008 17:27:09

when someone says "to Air" like TA to Air, is that referring to a riser trick?

3. Rorix

Date: Wed, Jul 16 2008 21:59:08

I believe 'Air' is just used when referring to this aerial by bonkura:

<http://youtube.com/watch?v=80rk8nhTopk>

I've never seen it used elsewhere.

4. Escapist1

Date: Thu, Jul 17 2008 02:49:51

I'm guessing that "to air" is the same as a release.

5. LMnet

Date: Thu, Jul 17 2008 16:37:06

So, how i must breaking down TA to Air?

6. Mats

Date: Thu, Jul 17 2008 16:46:25

What is this whole 'air' business? I think it can all just be forgotten about. After reading the definitions in this article you can see that all air tricks are pretty much

For Bonkura's TA > Air I think you can say ThumbAround ~ ThumbAround Release [p 1]

Edit: That second one is a bit more complex to breakdown. It looks kinda like Extended Thumbaround > Fingerless Thumbaround ~ Thumbaround Release. It's really crazy!

7. LMnet

Date: Thu, Jul 17 2008 18:31:33

I think it's something like TA [p][s 1.0] ~ FL Neo-sonic rev release 1-12

8. sketching

Date: Thu, Jul 17 2008 20:32:15

bonkura's "air" thing looks like TA ~ FL IA Riser to me.

9. Mats

Date: Thu, Jul 17 2008 22:19:00

I don't think it goes around the index at any point though? Instead of finishing the TA under the index finger (catching it between the underneath of index and top of middle finger) you finish the TA on top of the index finger that then, instead of catching the pen just hits it up... So I don't really think this can be called an Indexaround?

10. sketching

Date: Thu, Jul 17 2008 22:58:50

You can start an IA above the index finger, Indexaround T1-T1 is perfectly fine. Doing a different hand motion can give you a TA T2-T1 ~ FL IA T1-T1. With that in mind, TA ~ FL IA Riser makes sense to me, you just interrupt the pen's around motion before it really gets going around the finger.

11. Shadowserpant

Date: Fri, Jul 18 2008 00:36:39

it doesn't fully go around, so... i think it's a release or, an extended TA riser idk, but uh for the second one, i'm pretty sure it's the exact same thing except ext. TA > IA > w/e u wanna call it

12. sangara

Date: Fri, Jul 18 2008 17:46:58

As soon as I saw this I thought of TA to Air, but I'm not seeing the IA part he like 'bumps' it with his index...

13. Mats

Date: Fri, Jul 18 2008 17:56:42

QUOTE (sangara @ Jul 18 2008, 06:46 PM)

As soon as I saw this I thought of TA to Air, but I'm not seeing the IA part he like 'bumps' it with his index...

Yeah that's why I thought it's more like TA ~ TA Release [p 1] cos at no point does it even start going around the index finger. It seems strange to have TA ~ FL IA when the FL IA would be FL IA [s 0.0]

14. Look Into the Sun

Date: Sat, Jul 19 2008 01:25:26

QUOTE (Mats @ Jul 18 2008, 10:56 AM)

Yeah that's why I thought it's more like TA ~ TA Release [p 1] cos at no point does it even start going around the index finger. It seems strange to have TA ~ FL IA when the FL IA would be FL IA [s 0.0]

I'd go with sketching. If you do just an FL IA Riser you'll notice that it uses the same hand motions as you do when you release the pen during the TA to air.

15. Shadowserpant

Date: Sat, Jul 19 2008 01:29:12

was thinking, and i agree with sketching it's completely identical to an ext TA riser, just done vertically

16. Stay'n Alive

Date: Wed, Jul 23 2008 16:02:24

TA air is TA to indextap.

but the first trick of the second aerial Bonkura does in the vid is a Fake Double, fingerless TA than index tap, to throw it in the air.

But Fake Double isn't formal, and extend TA isn't right.

Hey by the way, if the pen is like hitted, like in BonKura's video, and not just "pushed", is it called a tap? I see "tap" for this kind of aerals often.

17. sketching

Date: Wed, Jul 23 2008 18:36:02

I've never seen tap used for an aerial before.

18. Stay'n Alive

Date: Wed, Jul 23 2008 22:34:12

What I mean by tap is a notation usen in french board, it's not a half tap, but like, put a finger at the horizontal and hit the pen to throw it in the air.

But btw, the thing that does BonKura, it's a release or a riser? It's not a riser beacause ther'es no spin part, but it don't look like a release.

19. schlynn

Date: Tue, Sep 30 2008 03:20:36

2 types? Would the helicopter be a new type then? Its more like a pull not a push.

20. alco holic

Date: Tue, Dec 9 2008 07:24:17

QUOTE (sketching @ Jul 17 2008, 04:32 PM)

bonkura's "air" thing looks like TA ~ FL IA Riser to me.

i have some question.

Riser? why?

i agree with you about "FL IA" part but...

TA to Air that in first part of the bonkura's video doesn't has any "topspin".

he just use his index finger to push the pen directly into air.

so, why you call it "Riser"?

sorry for my bad English.